The Secret of Friendship.

INTENTION FOR MAY, and then we notice an intimate friendship existing between persons who apparently have nothing in common. Their tastes are different, their dispositions are opposite, and, it may be, in education they are as far apart as one could well imagine, and yet they are sponse this relation or ready a response this relation. They are so unlike that the casual observer can see no basis for their mutual sympathy, and naturally he asks what can possibly be their bond of union, and in the last analysis what, after all, underlies all friendship existing between persons who apparently have nothing in common. Their tastes are different, their dispositions are opposite, and, it may be, in education they are as far apart as one could well imagine, and yet they have reflected to the pagan and the Christian world in the treatment of children. Father Moran, a prominent divine of Anaconda, who spoke on "Education," devoting much of his lecture to showing the contrast between the spirit of the pagan and the Christian world in the treatment of children. Father Moran is a forceful speaker and his words were carefully heeded. He said in part:

"There is no department of life in which this clurch has done so much ship."

Some have replied to this question. Now and then we notice an intimate

Some have replied to this question by saying: "It is a blind instinct." This cannot be the true answer, for we know of instances where those who after the peries honor. Light, easily di-gested food, avoidance of highly spiced and seasoned dishes, pickles and pas-try, the substitution of milk or cocoa for tea, coffee and alcoholic drinks, with fresh air and exercise, will do much toward promoting a clear skin and maintaining a look of youthfulness. Good Looks and Appetite.

Teo many women sacrifice good looks to appetite. The woman who could have a nice skin and a clear complexion must be even more careful in the choice of the food she eats than in the gowns she wears. Stoutness and thinness are both very often caused by errors in diet, and a sallow and rough condition of the skin may arise from grand beager to the meeting, and encouragement to those present. After refreshments, which all enjoyed, the meeting adjourned. The next meeting adjourned. The home of Mrs. J. Dorcey in Locust street. Does Your Light Cost Too Much?

Not if you use Electric Light. No matter how much of its inferior imitations you can buy for a dollar, it costs too much if you consider quality and hygienic features of value.

ELECTRIC LIGHT

Is one of the greatest boons of the age, a light that gives out no odor, consumes no health-giving oxygen, puts no strain on the eyes, but shines out clearly, brightly and beautifully. With a twist of the wrist you can turn the light on or off as needed—no matches used; no smoky, smelly light to make life unbearable.
